Description

The training session included main sessions and break-out sessions, with multiple speakers logging on to the same platform. We also facilitated live interviews and various speaking panels. Attendees could break out into group activities which are random or assigned, and groups can be categorized specifically by room. We include a timer on session duration, assign moderators for brainstorming sessions, and provide real-time support for moderator needs. With our platform each moderator has control of the room, white-board, can assign a host, run the moderator panel, and take discussion notes.

We set up 10 breakout rooms and multiple networking opportunities were spread across the virtual platform to further learning. After a live broadcast of the main session, we offered real-time polling and surveys which were then included in the closing remarks.
